Triquatrain

Sacked Angels

Angels so divine, in unemployment line
while The Creator revises The Plan.
For earthly beings, re-seeings
meant to become more partisan

It seems truly, people are unruly
and poor guardians of polluted Earth.
While reworking attitudes, seeking gratitudes
sacked angels explore a new berth.

Angels depart to another realm, new leaders take the helm
to try to re-wire people's brains.
All part of a robotic force? Of course
we could keep angels if we re-train.

Angels droop their wings, dirges each sings
they failed to keep humanity on track.
Divine intervention, their intention
but no directive for a new attack.

In the universe, there are worse
creatures needing their care.
Angels hope for the best, as they wrest
themselves for stardust somewhere.

Meanwhile The Creator, the Divine Debater
puzzles over multi-versal creations.
What to do, what follow through
for cosmic harmonizations.

Can't erase, this errant race
from contemplative relations,
for free will is on Earth still
despite perilous situations.

Become a dictator, or mediator?
The choices seem so narrow.
Tweak DNA in alien way
or shoot for the stars with Cupid's arrow?

Triquatrain: Invented by Robert L. Huntsman

1. Lines 1 and 3 have internal rhymes. Lines 2 and 4 do not but end rhyme.
2. Pattern: (a,a)- b- (c,c) b   (d,d)-e-(f,f)-e   (g,g)-h-(i,i) h   Etc.
3. The pairs in the parenthesis are on one line separated by a comma.
4. Poem may be any length or topic. Does not require regular meter.
