

One Adjective-Adverb Poem

Sky Not Completely Clear

On day taxes are due camera can't catch
parhelion or lunar eclipse.

Halos of sun
may predict rain.

At midnight
with binoculars
I sat in driveway waiting for shadow
to pass for blood moon.

Both events smudged by clouds.
Both tax vision and patience—lightly,

One Adjective-Adverb Poem

1. Try to write a poem with only one adjective and one adverb.
2. Adjective blood is in italics. Adverb lightly is in bold.
3. Still wondering if lunar is part of the noun with moon.
